MEMORANDUM OF OPINION¹

On August 8, 2006, the plaintiff Chapter 7 trustee filed an adversary complaint against the debtor-defendant Daniel Oprea to revoke and deny the debtor's discharge pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(6) and (d)(3). The initial complaint alleged that the debtor had failed to comply with an order to turnover property of the estate. On September 8, 2006, the defendant filed an answer to the complaint, denying that he had failed to comply with such an order. On September 23, 2006, the plaintiff filed an amended complaint seeking revocation and denial of discharge for the debtor's failure to comply with the Court's September 12, 2005, order for the debtor to appear at a Rule 2004 examination. The defendant did not file an answer to the amended complaint, and on November 19, 2006, the plaintiff filed a motion for summary judgment. For the reasons that follow, the plaintiff's motion for summary judgment is granted.

FACTS

On August 28, 2004, the defendant filed a petition under Chapter 7 of the Bankruptcy Code.² The debtor was granted a discharge on December 1, 2004, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 727. On September 12, 2005, the Court ordered the defendant to appear for a Rule 2004 examination, and to produce copies of financial statements, including completed federal and state tax returns for 2004. (Case No. 04-21080, Docket #12). According to the affidavit accompanying the plaintiff's motion for summary judgment, the defendant has failed to comply with that order. The defendant has not filed a response to the motion for summary judgment.

DISCUSSION

The Court has jurisdiction in this adversary proceeding pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1334(b) and Local General Order No. 84, entered on July 16, 1984, by the United States District Court for the Northern District of Ohio. This is a core proceeding pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2)(J).

Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 56(c), as made applicable to bankruptcy proceedings by Bankruptcy Rule 7056, provides that a court shall render summary judgment if the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the moving party is entitled to a judgment as a matter of law.

The party moving the court for summary judgment bears the burden of showing that “there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that [the moving party] is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.” Jones v. Union County, 296 F.3d 417, 423 (6th Cir. 2002). See generally Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 322 (1986). Once the moving party meets that burden, the nonmoving party “must identify specific facts supported by affidavits, or by depositions, answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file that show there is a genuine issue for trial.” Hall v. Tollett, 128 F.3d 418, 422 (6th Cir. 1997). See, e.g., Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 252 (1986) (“The mere existence of a scintilla of evidence in support of the plaintiff’s position will be insufficient; there must be evidence on which the jury could reasonably find for the plaintiff.”). In determining the existence or nonexistence of a material fact, a court will review the evidence in a light most favorable to the nonmoving party. See Tennessee Department of Mental Health & Mental Retardation v. Paul B., 88 F.3d 1466, 1472 (6th Cir. 1996).

The plaintiff requests that the Court revoke the defendant’s discharge pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 727(d)(3).³ Section 727 provides that:

(d) On request of the trustee . . . and after notice and a hearing, the court shall revoke a discharge granted under subsection (a) of this section if —

³ Although the trustee seeks the revocation and denial of the debtor’s discharge, the Court believes that any order revoking a debtor’s discharge under subsection 727(d) means the debtor’s discharge is taken away without another chance to obtain a discharge in the case. This situation is to be distinguished from the situation in which a debtor’s discharge is vacated and the debtor still has an opportunity to obtain a discharge in the case. See In re Midkiff, 342 F.3d 1194 (10th Cir. 2003) (Bankruptcy Rule 9024 authorizes court to vacate discharge order separate and apart from revocation of discharge). As the Tenth Circuit noted in Midkiff, “Revocation of discharge has the same effect as a denial of discharge.” 342 F.3d at 1199 (internal quotation marks omitted). Thus, in the context of subsection 727(d), the phrase “revocation and denial of discharge” is redundant.

(3) the debtor committed an act specified in subsection (a)(6) of this section.

In turn, 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(6)(A) provides that a debtor's discharge shall be denied when the debtor has refused "to obey any lawful order of the court, other than an order to respond to a material question or to testify." See, e.g., In re Watson, 247 B.R. 434, 436 (Bankr. N.D. Ohio 2000).

Given the evidence adduced from the parties' pleadings, and the plaintiff's affidavit, the plaintiff has shown that the defendant violated a lawful order of the Court to appear for a Rule 2004 examination and produce copies of financial statements, including completed federal and state tax returns for 2004. The defendant has failed to respond to the motion for summary judgment or to produce any evidence admissible under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 56(e) to show the existence of a material fact.

Viewing the evidence before it in a light most favorable to the defendant, the Court finds there is no genuine issue of material fact and that the plaintiff is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. Accordingly, the plaintiff's motion for summary judgment is granted.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, the trustee's motion for summary judgment is granted. A separate judgment shall be entered in accordance with this Memorandum of Opinion.
